Chairman's note

At the outset, I would take this opportunity to wish everyone a Very Happy New Year.

With a successful vaccine rollout program and a successful vaccination drive, there has been improved consumer confidence that has resulted in increased mobility across the country. Due to major fiscal support, accumulated savings, and global financial support, markets got off to a strong start in the last quarter of 2021.

The highly infectious Omicron variant has started to spread, and we all need to be careful and vigilant that it does not develop into the third wave. The expected impact of this variant may be lower, than on earlier occasions, as it is being found that this variant is milder and may pass through quickly without large-scale hospitalizations. Our government has assessed various steps taken in implementing pandemic-related measures to tackle possible future disruptions that may occur due to the ongoing variant of the COVID-19 pandemic.

India has emerged as the fastest-growing major economy and is expected to be one of the top three economic powers in the world as there have been investments across various sectors of the economy. Numerous foreign companies are setting up their facilities in India on account of various Government initiatives. The other key areas that need to be focused upon are- human capital, education, health, exports, travel and tourism, food processing, etc.

India has a strong focus on renewable energy sources. At COP 21 India had committed to achieving 40% of its installed electricity capacity from non-fossil energy sources by 2030, but the country has achieved this target in November 2021 itself. This is a proud moment for all.

Trade growth is rebounding strongly reflecting India's robust economic recovery. A significant increase in exports will boost economic growth and employment generation. The Production-Linked Incentive Scheme is expected to further boost manufacturing. The planned increase in public investment is also expected to support domestic demand. The global and domestic demand for graphite electrodes has been impacted due to lower demand from the market due to partial closure of steel capacities, lower steel production, and destocking of electrode inventory at customers' end. With the revival of economic activities, the domestic & global steel industry is expected to normalize in the medium term with the revival of key sectors such as infrastructure & construction and new industries being set up under the "Make in India" initiatives. Hence, the demand for graphite electrodes is also expected to increase.

The Indian textiles sector has been one of the worst-hit sectors due to the pandemic. In the context of its socio-economic primacy for the Indian economy, which is second only to agriculture, the industry must be given sufficient attention in academic and policy circles.

My heartfelt appreciation for all the LNJ Bhilwara employees who have taken a great responsibility with courage and commitment to ensure the smooth functioning of the organisation in the wake of COVID-19. We remain optimistic that this is the decade of opportunities, particularly for our country.

With Best Wishes

Interview at Business School

Once in an interview at a business school, a panel of interviewers was taking interview of prospective students for admission in school.

One of the prospective students entered and sat down nervously on chair in front of them, One of interviewer said to boy, "We shall either ask you either ten easy questions or one really difficult question. What would you choose?"

Boy thought for a while and replied, "I would like to answer one really difficult question."

Interviewer smile and replied, "Well then good luck to you, Now answer us What comes first, Day or Night?"

Boy was jolted into reality as his admission depended on the correct answer to this question but then he thought for a while and replied, "It's a Day. Sir"

"How?", asked Interviewer.

"Sorry sir but you assured me that i do not need to answer any other question if i choose to answer one difficult question", boy replied.

Boy was selected for admission.

The One Minute Father

by Spencer Johnson, M.D.

A man who sees that he has been a better provider than parent learns by trial and error how to be more nurturing. He first learns a more effective way to discipline -- applying One Minute Reprimands. Then his children help him discover two even more important parenting methods -- One Minute Praising's and One Minute Goals. Using these practical methods, a father develops more confidence in himself as a parent, as he and his children enjoy a happier family life. The One Minute Father begins where most fathers are and takes them to where they want to be. Fathers can effectively balance their time and become just what they want, and their children deserve. The working life is very stressful, and parents are in real need for effective and rewarding advice that can help them to manage their kids. This book shows you effective ways to help your children to like themselves and behave well. The theories given in this book are based on the one-minute approach.

The book helps fathers as well as children develop their confidence, increase happiness, and enjoy satisfaction in their relationship. Incorporated in the book are techniques like One Minute Praising's, One Minute Reprimands and One Minute Goals.

WALK FASTER VS WALK LONGER

Walk faster:

Walking has proven to be an excellent way to stay fit and healthy, and several studies have shown how walking can improve mental and physical health, making it one of the most popular forms of aerobic exercise a person does. However, the pace at which everyone walks is not always the same. This raises a question. Does speed matter? And the answer is “yes.” The faster the pace, the better the benefits of walking.

What is brisk walking?

Walking at a fast pace is known as brisk walking, and people practice it in different forms and combinations such as pure brisk walking, alternating between brisk walking and leisure walking, alternating between brisk walking and jogging, and during brisk walking it is important to have the correct technique. Here are some tips for effective brisk walking:

- Make sure your body is relaxed.
- Your vision should be forward, head, and neck relaxed.
- Your arms should relax and swing while walking.
- Ensure that your body is in an upright position with your back straight.
- Use and exercise your toes and feet completely while walking.

Benefits of brisk walking:

- Heart health: Brisk walking can help manage blood sugar and stress, reduce the risk of obesity or weight gain, and improve immunity.
- Weight management: Regular schedule can help burn calories and fat faster and thus aid weight management.
- Promotes Mental Health: It can help improve memory and sleep thus ensuring that the body stays rested.

- Improves Musculoskeletal Health: Brisk walking can help promote and strengthen muscle and bone health by improving circulation and weight.
- May Help Longevity: A strong, capable body could stay healthy for a longer period.

The benefits of prolonged walking :

HOW TO STOP STRESS EATING

Stress eating eases your feelings temporarily, but the big emotions are likely to return.

What is Stress Eating?

Stress eating, or emotional eating is a way of consuming food to help ease negative emotions or pain. Emotions such as sadness, boredom, stress, fear, worry, guilt, shame, or loneliness may feel overwhelming, especially if triggered by a major life event.

Recognize Your Emotional Eating Patterns to Avoid Stress Eating

The tendency to eat in stressful times is a learned response: the more often you use food to cope with stress, the stronger the habit becomes. Eating high-fat, high-sugar foods reinforce this association between food and comfort.

Swap Out Comfort Foods for Nourishing Snacks

To retrain your brain, you can replace comfort foods with healthier alternatives. Eating foods that can cope with stress, such as antioxidant-rich green or white tea, cherries, and dark chocolate. This way, your brain still enjoys the feeling of snacking and feeling satisfied without the effects of eating high-sugar, high-sodium, and high-calorie foods.

Think Ahead to How You May Feel

When choosing how to process your emotions and learning how to control stress eating, ask yourself if your actions will make you feel better or worse in the aftermath. For example, choosing to go for a walk or taking time to read will have a very different effect on how you feel compared to consuming a large amount of food.

Stick to a Regular Meal Schedule

Eating at unplanned times or allowing your body to go for long periods of time without food, try adhering to a meal schedule. Thoughtfully space your meals out over the course of each day to keep your blood sugar stable and hunger levels at bay.

Prepare New and Interesting Meals at Home

Explore the culinary arts and improve your relationship with food by preparing your meals at home. Find recipes that involve new ingredients or try to cook yourself. By preparing your own food, you are more conscious of what you put into your body. People who cook more meals at home consume more fruits and vegetables and are less likely to be overweight.

Avoid Boredom

Many people turn to food when they are stressed because they have nothing else to do. Rather than eating as an activity, occupy yourself with something you enjoy. Gardening, crafting, practicing guitar, or any activity that keeps you busy can be a successful stress eating solution.

Tips to Stop Stress Eating at Night

Tips that can help you focus on how to stop stress eating at night:

- Eat a healthy snack in the evening that contains protein.
- Find an activity that keeps you busy like knitting, drawing, or even cleaning!
- Be sure to eat adequately during the day.
- Get a good night of sleep by creating a bedtime routine.

Makadi Bay

Come to the turquoise waters and beautiful desert landscape of Makadi Bay on the Red Sea. Set in a beautiful natural bay, the luxurious resort town of Makadi offers you tranquillity and peace of mind like no other town in Egypt. Makadi is also surrounded by Egyptian Eastern Desert, with its wealth of natural beauty and things to see.

Aswan

This is one of the most relaxing Egypt holiday destinations in the Southern part. In ancient Egypt, it was called Swenette and housed the stone quarries that supplied material to build the famous pyramids. However, Aswan is now known for its breath-taking views of the desert dunes and the Nile River.

Karnak Temple

The Karnak temple complex is the most astonishing tourist spot and includes the Karnak Open Air Museum. The temple houses three other famous temples within its premises – the Temple of Khons, the Great Temple of Amun and the Festival Temple of Tuthmosis III.
